DETAILED TABLE OF CONTENTS

Authors .........................................................................................................V
Presentation ..............................................................................................VII
Table of contents .........................................................................................XI

Chapter 1. Public transparency as a tool to prevent corruption in public administration
Agustí Cerrillo-i-Martínez ........................................................................1
  1. Introduction ................................................................................... 1
  2. Public transparency ..................................................................... 1
      2.1. A conceptual approach to transparency ......................... 2
      2.2. How can transparency contribute to preventing and fighting corruption? ................................................. 3
  3. Comparative regulation of transparency ...................................... 4
      3.1. Passive transparency ..................................................... 5
      3.2. Active transparency .................................................... 7
      3.3. Collaborative transparency ............................................ 11
  4. How effective is the regulation of transparency in preventing and fighting corruption? ....................................................... 13
  5. What are the possibilities and limits for regulating transparency? .... 17
  6. How should the regulation of transparency evolve in the future to make it an effective mechanism for fighting corruption? ....................................................... 18
  7. References .....................................................................................20

Chapter 2. The Right to Good Administration and the role of Administrative Law in promoting good government
Juli Ponce .................................................................................................25
  1. Concept: What is the right to good administration? ................. 25
  2. How is the right to good administration regulated by Public Law?... 29
  3. How are the legal mechanisms of good administration working and being regulated? ..................................................38
3.1. Judicial protection of the right to a good administration in the European level .............................................................39
3.2. The role of national legislation .................................................40
3.3. Judicial protection at the national level ........................................40
4. What are the possibilities and limits of regulation of good administration by Public Law? .....................................................41
5. How will the regulation about good administration evolve in the future? .................................................................................42
6. References .....................................................................................49

Chapter 3. Understanding and preventing corruption: a regulatory approach

Maria De Benedetto ........................................................................55
1. Like corruption, anticorruption starts from rules .......................55
2. A look at problems .........................................................................56
   2.1. Legislative inflation, creative compliance and corruption ........56
   2.2. Consultation, lobbying and regulatory capture .......................58
3. A look at remedies ..........................................................................59
   3.1. Regulatory stock ...................................................................59
   a) Simplification .....................................................................59
   b) Advocacy powers ................................................................60 3.2. Regulatory flow .....................................................................61
   a) Corruption Impact Assessment ...........................................61
   b) Tracing interests .................................................................62
   4.1. The main path: an incentive/disincentive approach ..........63
   4.2. Strengthening the results via behavioural sciences ...............65
5. References .....................................................................................66

Chapter 4. A behavioural approach to administrative corruption prevention

Nicoletta Rangoone ..........................................................................69
1. Introduction ..................................................................................69
2. Corruption prevention through good quality regulation ..........71
3. Preventing corruption through specific regulation ..................75
   3.1. Cognitive-based regulatory impact assessment: a case for whistleblower and staff rotation regimes ........75
   3.2. The role of transparency in the public sector: what Italy has done and what remains to be done ..........82
Detailed Table of Contents

Chapter 3.3. A cognitive-based approach to transparency in the public sector

3.3.1 Cognitive-based approach to transparency in the public sector ................................................................. 85

Chapter 3.4. Cognitive-based approach to enforcement: how to ensure clear disclosure compliance records

3.4.1 Cognitive-based approach to enforcement: how to ensure clear disclosure compliance records ............................. 88

Chapter 4. Conclusions

4.1 Conclusions .................................................................................. 91

Chapter 5. References

5.1 References ..................................................................................... 92

Chapter 5. Better regulation to prevent corruption: The Corruption Impact Assessment (CIA)

Luca Di Donato

5.2 Better regulation to prevent corruption: The Corruption Impact Assessment (CIA) ......................................................... 101

1. An analysis of Corruption-risk factors in the legislation

5.2.1 An analysis of Corruption-risk factors in the legislation .......... 101

2. Corruption Impact Assessment (CIA)

5.2.2 Corruption Impact Assessment (CIA) .......................................... 103

2.1. The CIA Checklist

5.2.3 The CIA Checklist ................................................................ 104

3. Conclusion

5.2.4 Conclusion ................................................................................ 106

Chapter 6. References

5.3 References ..................................................................................... 107

Chapter 6. Risk-based approaches towards corruption prevention

Livia Lorenzoni

6.1 Risk-based approaches towards corruption prevention ......................... 111

1. Introduction

6.1.1 Introduction ............................................................................. 111

2. Examples from Italian law

6.1.2 Examples from Italian law ........................................................ 113

3. Advantages and shortcomings of risk-based regulation in the Italian legislation

6.1.3 Advantages and shortcomings of risk-based regulation in the Italian legislation .............................................. 115

Chapter 7. References

6.2 References ..................................................................................... 119

Chapter 7. Corruption and Conflict of Interest: Some Comparative Comments

Jean-Bernard Aubry

7.1 Corruption and Conflict of Interest: Some Comparative Comments

7.1.1 Corruption and Conflict of Interest: Some Comparative Comments ................................................................. 123

1. Different traditional backgrounds

7.1.2 Different traditional backgrounds ............................................. 123

2. A trend to homogeneity through internationalization

7.1.3 A trend to homogeneity through internationalization ............ 126

3. Persistence of peculiarities

7.1.4 Persistence of peculiarities ....................................................... 128

Chapter 8. References

7.2 References ..................................................................................... 131

Chapter 8. Lobby Regulation To Prevent Corruption

Enrico Carloni

8.1 Lobby Regulation To Prevent Corruption ........................................ 133

1. Lobbying, corruption and the public interest

8.1.1 Lobbying, corruption and the public interest .............................. 133

2. The participation of stakeholders and pressure groups

8.1.2 The participation of stakeholders and pressure groups .......... 135

3. Lobbying: the search for a definition

8.1.3 Lobbying: the search for a definition ......................................... 136

4. The regulation of lobbying in a comparative scenario

8.1.4 The regulation of lobbying in a comparative scenario ............ 138

5. Indirect and “creeping” regulation: the Italian case

8.1.5 Indirect and “creeping” regulation: the Italian case ................. 143
6. The regulation of lobbying in anti-corruption policies ............146
7. Concluding considerations ...................................................148
8. References ............................................................................149

Anthony D. Molina .................................................................153

1. Introduction ........................................................................153
2. The Normative Foundations of Public Ethics ......................153
3. The Psychology of Moral Reasoning ................................157
4. Factors that Undermine Ethical Conduct .........................159
5. The Nature of Corruption Networks ................................162
6. The Integrity System Approach .........................................165
7. Conclusion ..........................................................................168
8. References ............................................................................169

Chapter 10. Plutocracy and Partyocracy: The Corruption of Liberal and Social Democracies

Timothy K. Kuhner .................................................................173

1. Competing Forms of Democracy, Competing Forms of Political Finance .............................................174
2. Plutocracy ............................................................................177
3. Partyocracy .........................................................................184
   3.1. A. Partyocracy In Theory ..............................................184
   3.2. Partyocracy In Practice .................................................187
4. Conclusion ............................................................................193
5. References ............................................................................195

Chapter 11. Fight against corruption in Italy

Francesco Merloni ....................................................................201
Benedetto Ponti .......................................................................201

1. The key concepts of anticorruption tools in the Italian legislative framework ........................................201
2. The regulations of anticorruption tools by Public Law .................................................................202
3. The working mechanisms of the anticorruption tools, as regulated by law .....................................205
   3.1. Measures of prevention .................................................205
   3.2. Public ethics – Limitations to the access to public functions .............................................205
   3.3. Codes of conduct ........................................................205
3.4. Transparency ........................................................................................................206
4. A look to the limits of regulation by Public Law ............................................206
   4.1. Insufficiency of the legal instruments .........................................................206
   4.2. Administrative and Criminal Law ...............................................................207
   4.3. The right level for a good preventive legislation .......................................207
5. Outlook on future developments of the regulation ...........................................207
6. References ............................................................................................................208

Epilogue: What can a transdisciplinary approach to corruption contribute to administrative law?

Agustí Cerrillo i Martínez .......................................................................................211
1. Administrative law: preventing and fighting against corruption ........211
2. The prevention of corruption by administrative law: a few examples from a transdisciplinary approach ..................213
   2.1. Good administration and the utility of the political and cognitive sciences ................................................213
   2.2. Transparency and the utility of the cognitive sciences and big data ..........214
   2.3. Good government and the relationship between law and ethics ..................216
   2.4. Conflicts of interest and the utility of psychology ..................................217
3. The fight against corruption by criminal law ...............................................219
4. Transdisciplinarity and the prevention of corruption: a methodological approach ...........................................221
5. References ............................................................................................................223

Detailed Table of Contents ....................................................................................229